QUEBEC NOTARY RECORDS—
The What, Where and How of a Genealogical Treasure Trove

This lecture addresses Quebec’s unique notary system, which has existed since the beginning of New France. The speaker will explain why these records can be so valuable in family history research, notaries having played a comprehensive role in ancestors’ day-to-day lives. Also covered will be various methods of accessing their records, which can potentially open a gateway to an abundance of genealogical data.
